Robert's Rules of Order

Interruptions:

Point of Privilege - complaint

Point of Order - executive board/chair is not following the rules

Point of Information - clarification on the facts of the discussion

Point of Parliamentary Inquiry - confusion about parliamentary rules

Voting:

- Every motion must have a second

- Anyone in the congress can second a motion and must state their name. "I, _____, second the motion."
- Everyone must vote even if they abstain. Say "yay, nay, or I abstain."

Amending a Motion:

- Any member of the congress can recommend a motion be amended by stating "I move to amend the motion by _____."
- The entire congress will vote on the amended motion, and it will be adopted by a simple majority.
- We can have a secondary amendment, but once it gets to secondary it cannot be amended again. The same process is applicable to pass the secondary amendment.

Considering Something Out of Its Scheduled Order:

- "I move to suspend the rules and consider _____"
- Requires a  $\frac{2}{3}$  majority to pass.
- Any member of congress can make this motion, but it will likely only be Executive Board members who need or want to do so.

Debate/Discuss:

- When a motion is introduced, there may be a debate on the matter. In this case, members of congress who want to discuss the matter should address the Chair, rather than another member of congress.
- Members of congress are limited to speak one time unless the entire assembly permits them to speak a second time.
- The Chair will alternate between both sides of the debate.
